KING SIGNS WAR ACT OF PARLIAMENT

EXTRAORDINARY POWERS ARE CONFERRED UPON GOVERNMENT FOR DURATION OF THE WAR.

CROWD VISITS PALACE

Stirring Demonstration Enacted at Quirinal When Royal Family Appears—King Victor Embraces National Standard.

Bulletin. London, May 22.—A dispatch from the Stefani News Agency today said King Victor Emanuel signed today an act conferring extraordinary powers on the government "for the duration of the war."

Triest Faces a Famine.

On the Italian Frontiers, May 22.—Reports received from Trieste say there is much distress in that seaport. The city is virtually without bread and even corn meal for porridge for the people is extremely scarce.

Very few of the Italians in Trieste have been able to go away.

Consecrate Rome to War.

Rome, May 21, via Paris, May 22.—Almost the entire population of Rome, except the aged and invalids, gathered this evening on Capitoline Hill, where Prince Colonna, the mayor, has convoked a solemn sitting of the municipal council to consecrate in the heart of the capital the new war.

The mayor delivered a diplomatic address, which provoked tremendous applause from the throngs that gathered in the senatorial hall.

After his address Prince Colonna, surrounded by aldermen and the municipal council and preceded by the standard of Rome, started for the Quirinal to pay tribute to King Victor Emanuel as the personification of Italy. The scene which was enacted when his majesty and members of his family appeared upon the balcony overlooking the square has few parallels in the history of Rome.

Vast Crowd at Quirinal. The multitude was so vast that all the people could not enter the square. From the crowd came a sound like the roaring of the sea.

The windows on the balcony of the Quirinal palace were thrown open to the balcony. There was a sign that the king was about to appear and the impatience of the crowd increased. There were cries of "Long live the king" and "Long live the house of Savoy."

Finally the king and queen and the royal children came out on the balcony. His majesty was in the uniform of a general. The crown prince was dressed as a sailor boy and waved his cap to the multitude.

King Embraces Flag. The enthusiasm of the people arose almost to delirium. The king then did an unprecedented thing. He gave orders that the Italian flag be raised to the balcony. There was a thundering cheer, his majesty advanced to the national standard and folding it in his arms, embraced it.

The royal family then retired within the palace. Later the king called the aldermen inside and to them told the conditions of the Italian army and the situation of the Roman people.

Proclamation to People. King Victor Emanuel was expected to issue a proclamation to the people, but the document will explain how Italy has been driven to take up arms and will appeal to all citizens to do their duty in such a way that the military will be assured. Another royal proclamation will be addressed to the army and the fleet.

Military Controls Railroads. The official Gazette has published a decree empowering military authorities to take control of all Italian railroads. This condition went into effect last night.

Gives Causus Belli. Paris, May 22.—It is considered that Austria's action in destroying the Italian and cutting telegraph and telephone lines at Ponte Caffaro and elsewhere, will constitute a casus belli, making Italy free to open hostilities without further diplomatic formalities, says a Gaulois dispatch from Turin.

ATTACK ON ITALIAN DISPLEASES BERLIN

German Youth's Assault on Italy's Ambassador Brings Indignation Talk from Press.

Berlin, May 22.—All German newspapers in strong language condemn the attack by a youth on the Italian ambassador last evening. The attack is the slightest manifestation of Italians who remain in the city.

One of the press without exception was strikingly calm and moderate. The fact that Italy's ambassador is in consideration of the attack is directed against her, contains little in the nature of abuse.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SINKS SAILING SHIP

Wrecked of Attack Before Firing Thirty-Nine Rounds at British Craft.

Berehaven, Ireland, May 22.—The British sailing ship Glenholm was sunk yesterday evening by a German submarine at a point fifteen miles off this port. Members of her crew landed here.

The Glenholm was on her way from Chilly to Liverpool with a cargo of nitrate. The submarine intercepted the sailing ship and signaled to the crew to abandon the ship. Then the submarine fired 39 rounds from her guns before she was sighted.

Near Lusitania Tragedy. Berehaven is south of the coast of Ireland on the north shore of Bantry Bay. The point where the Glenholm was sunk is roughly estimated to be more than sixty miles from Old Head off Kinsale, where the Lusitania went down.

NEW PLAN TO SETTLE THE CHICAGO STRIKE

State Arbitration Board Suggests Carpenters Resume Work While Matter Is Being Settled.

Chicago, May 22.—The state board of arbitration today made a new proposal to the 18,000 striking carpenters and their employers in an effort to end the strike which has paralyzed Chicago's building operations. The men and employers were asked to wait their differences to arbitration and resume work while negotiations were in progress.

RUSSIAN PAWNSHOPS LOSE IMMENSE TRADE SINCE PROHIBITION LAW

Moscow, May 22.—Prohibition of the sale of vodka and other intoxicating drinks has effected a striking reduction of the business of the municipal pawnshops. Notwithstanding the high price of foodstuffs and clothing entailed by the war, the population is steadily losing its dependence upon these institutions, as is shown by the following figures:

For the first quarter of 1914, the municipal pawnshops made 204,453 loans, aggregating $1,222,145. During the corresponding quarter of the present year, there were contracted 128,010 loans, totaling $886,857.

NORWEGIAN WHALING PROVES PROFITABLE IN SOUTH GEORGIA WATERS

Christiania, May 22.—The Norwegian whaling fleet in the Antarctic has been more profitable this season than ever before, especially around South Georgia. The boats have brought home 32,000 barrels of whale oil valued at more than $6,000,000.

ACTION IS DISMISSED AGAINST THOS. MULCAIRNS

On the motion of District Attorney S. G. Dunne in the municipal court this morning, the case against Thomas Mulcairns was dismissed from court. Mulcairns was charged with wife desertion and was in court in the custody of Turnkey William Wogan. A strange coincidence was that the funeral procession of Mulcairns' wife passed the court room just a few minutes after the action was dismissed.

Carlisle, England, May 22.—A special train carrying troops and bound south, collided with a local train at six o'clock this morning on the Carlisle railway at Cretna, near Carlisle. More than forty persons were killed and it is believed that more than 300 were injured.

Both trains caught on fire and the fire engines were summoned to put out the flames. After ten o'clock this morning, forty bodies were recovered from the wreck.

FIRST YEAR OF WAR COSTS TEN BILLION

Seven Allies Spend Enormous Sum in Warfare—Cost Teutons Nearly as Much.

Paris, May 22.—Captain Edmund Therry, widely known as an economic expert, estimates that the total military expenditure for the first year of the war will be 50,000,000,000 francs ($10,000,000,000) for the seven allies, and 37,000,000,000 ($7,400,000,000) for Germany, Austria and Turkey. This makes an average of 7,250,000,000 francs ($1,450,000,000) a month, 242,000,000,000 francs ($48,400,000,000) a year, or $2,000,000,000 ($400,000,000) an hour. He believed the economic powers of Great Britain and Russia can support the strain much more easily than their opponents.

Japan's War Expense. Tokyo, May 22.—Minister of finance, Wakisaka, announced to the diet today the supplement budget will cost $26,000,000, which will be used for the creation of two new army divisions, naval construction, education, industrial and harbor works. The allotment for the navy is $8,000,000.

RAILROAD TRESPASS MAY BE FORBIDDEN

Assembly Committee Favors Passage of Bill Prohibiting All Trespass on Railroad Tracks.

Madison, Wis., May 22.—The assembly committee on state affairs has recommended for passage the bill prohibiting trespassing on railroad tracks under a penalty of from $1 to $50. The bill has been before several sessions of the legislature, but in the session in which it is recommended, many of the features heretofore objected to have been eliminated. The bill, which will be on Tuesday's calendar for consideration, makes it unlawful for any person other than a licensee or those connected or employed by the railroad, to walk or loiter along the tracks. Because of the many objections made to the bill at previous sessions of the legislature, three exceptions are made that meet practically all of the objections heretofore raised. The first provides that the provisions of the law shall not be applicable in times of strikes by employees; second, it shall not apply to loading or unloading freight, and third, it shall not apply to any person driving across any railroad from one part of his land to another. The railroad companies claim that more persons are killed on railroad tracks, while trespassing, than on any other cause.

CALIFORNIA RANCHES BURIED UNDER LAVA

Farmers Have Hope That Mud Stream from Lassen Peak Will Make Good Soil.

San Francisco, May 22.—Whether mud ejected from Lassen Peak in Northern California is of a quality that will make good soil, was the main interest today to ranchers whose buildings lay in the narrow fifteen mile mud stream. The peak itself was quiet clear early in the day. The outbreak is pointed out to have followed heavy rains and may have followed a steepage of water into the heated interior of the mountain.

Part of the crater of Lassen Peak has fallen in, according to advice reaching here today. "Hot lava from the crater of Lassen Peak melted the snow on the slopes and caused the flood of mud which descended on the flat creek valley today," Supervisor Rush reported to the forest service here today.

Madison, Wis., May 22.—Within the next month vacancies will occur in several of the departments of the capital and it is expected that Gov. Philipp will make appointments by the end of the month. The appointment of John A. Shultz as state fish and game warden expires on June 7, but because of the consolidation measure it is said no new appointment will be made. The appointment of Herman L. Ekeirn as commissioner of insurance expires on June 20 and the appointment of Charles H. Crownhart as superior as chairman of the state industrial commission expires on the same date.

The appointment of Louis F. Meyer, Milwaukee, as oil inspector, expired on April 7, but no new appointment was made because of the consolidation. The appointment of David H. Davies as state treasury agent expires on August 21.

HOT BATTLE STILL RAGES AT RIVER SAN

CENTER OF 250 MILE FRONT IN GALICIA IS SCENE OF SIGNIFICANT ENCOUNTER.

TURKS SUFFER A LOSS

Australian Troops on Gallipoli Peninsula Make a Brilliant Attack—Fighting on Lorette, Heights in France.

London, May 22.—A great battle is still raging along a 250 mile front on the eastern line. Although Russia apparently is gaining on both flanks the decision must come along the 60 miles front in the center along the river San in central Galicia, where the Austrians and Germans are still pressing the offensive.

The latest Petrograd communication states that this attack is being checked between the San and the great marshes of the Dniester. The Russian press, while admitting that the Teutonic forces have established themselves across the San, declares they can go no farther in that direction.

Petrograd also has been cheered by the official report that the Russians are again advancing against the Turks in the Caucasus.

French Capture Lorette. On the western line Paris reports that the French have stopped a strong night attack of the Germans north of Ypres and also have driven the invaders from the slopes of Lorette, thus giving the allies full possession of this important salient.

No formal declaration of war by Italy against her former partners in the triple alliance has been reported, but many incidents have occurred of an actual state of war. The organizers of the new British cabinet are taking a holiday over the week. Sunday, which probably means that the composition of the coalition government will not take place this week.

A Geneva telegram reports that Emperor Joseph has resigned, but Hungary premier has resigned, but Emperor Joseph is said to have declined to accept his resignation.

Paris, May 22.—The French war office says: "Our troops completed yesterday evening the cleaning up of the trenches known as 'the White Way.'"

During the night the enemy made several counterattacks. He was repulsed and suffered heavy losses. All the spur of "the White Way" is in our hands.

We have made further progress to the east of the chapel of Lorette. We are at the present time within one hundred yards of the northeast corner of Abian.

Usual German Claims. Berlin, wireless to Saville, May 22.—The Overseas News Agency says: "The Russian daily newspaper, Rech, confesses that the attack on the Bosphorus is most difficult and immense losses are probable."

British and French attacks were repelled to the southeast of Nueve Chapelle, where colored English troops were taken prisoners, and on the heights of Lorette.

South of Lille and in the Argonne the enemy made use of mines charged with poisonous gases.

To the east of Windau in Courland, Russia, there have been cavalry engagements. At Shavil in Kovno province on the Dnieper river Russian night attacks were repulsed and two hundred Russian prisoners taken.

In the southeastern theatre of war there have been no changes of importance.

ROCKEFELLER HOLDS VIOLENCE IS RIGHT IF THE LAW IS LAX

Continuous Grilling By Chairman Walsh Falls to Shake Oil King in His Stand on Colorado Situation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, May 22.—With only four members of the industrial relations commission present, Chairman Walsh today resumed his vigorous cross-examination of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., on relations to industrial warfare in the coal fields of Colorado. Mrs. J. Borden Hartman was present against the attitude of Mr. Rockefeller, was one of those absent. Mr. Rockefeller reiterated his opinion that when the authorities failed to protect life and property, the private citizen had the right to use force to protect himself. He argued the use of force against an owner would be justified only in circumstances which would assure a finding of innocence in court of law and in spite of a long wrangle with the chairman, refused to add to the statement.

Walsh read a letter to Rockefeller by L. M. Bower in September, 1913, saying: "Old Mother Jones has been ordered on the ground for two weeks but we understand the governor has ordered her to be taken to the state line and told not to return."

Walsh then read part of Rockefeller's letter to Bower saying: "I would back the mine officials in everything they did, and asked if it was not writing after deportations had occurred."

"I can't do it at this time, but any letter you desire to read, you may submit after I have concluded my examination of the Colorado situation."

"Then I am unable to reply intelligently to questions based on fragments of letters."

PASS BILL ALLOWING LICENSES TO CLUBS

Senate Takes Favorable Action on Fairchild Measure—Various Other Bills Acted Upon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 22.—The senate today took favorable action on the Fairchild measure, which would permit clubs to run for profit to hold liquor licenses denied them under the construction of the Baker law by the supreme court, but providing that the existing limit shall not be exceeded. Clubs must, therefore, obtain a license through surrender of existing licenses in communities where the limit is already reached.

The Stevens bill on liquor licenses to hotels went over until Thursday.

The senate engrossed the following bills: Judiciary—Providing for the removal of habeas corpus proceedings from court commissioners.

Bray—Permitting the examination by the legislature of any state officer or employee, upon petition of either house.

State affairs committee—Providing that the net weight shall govern in the case of commodities on the weight basis.

Everett—Authorizing common councils to establish park and recreation boards.

Corporations committee—Providing a form of oath for election of officers of a corporation.

Baxter—for a closed season for trout in inland waters of Douglas, Big Lake and Iron counties between Sept. 1 and May 1.

The senate killed the Richards bill appropriating $27,500 for repairs and improvements at the Wisconsin Industrial School at Milwaukee.

Bray bill for payment of legislators and members of the Wisconsin Industrial School at Milwaukee.

Budlong bill prohibiting false or fictitious names in court actions, and the Reinhardt bill authorizing the state board of education to purchase lands and improvements thereon for school purposes.

Bills concurred in included: Fielding, permitting wholesalers of liquors to take out a wholesaler's license as distinguished from license to retail liquor. Many bills on the calendars of the last three days went over upon invitation of the lieutenant governor.

JURY GIVES ITS VERDICT FOR COLONEL

ANNOUNCE DECISION TODAY IN ROOSEVELT'S FAVOR IN BARNES LIBEL SUIT.

DEBATE ELEVEN HOURS

Split On Costs Brings Deadlock Which Keeps Jury Locked Up All Night.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Syracuse, N. Y., May 22.—The jury in the trial of Wm. Barnes' suit for libel against Theodore Roosevelt today returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, after considering more than eleven hours the question of placing all costs of action upon the plaintiff. It is believed by the jury that everything Colonel Roosevelt charged is true, and therefore, the plaintiff not having been libeled, is entitled to no damages.

The foreman of the jury, Warren W. Somers, announced the verdict for the defendant and then the jury was polled. Ten jurors answered "For the defendant." Then the clerk hesitated, and called the name of Edward Burnes and waited. Burnes, a rosy, cheerful republican, stood up in his seat and said in a deep voice, "For the defendant." Juror No. 12 gave the same answer.

Before the jury came in, the spectators in the crowded court room were warned that any demonstrations would be met with severe punishment. Except for the voice of the clerk and jurors, the room was absolutely quiet until the name of Burnes was called. When he announced that he, too, favored the verdict for the former president, the court room buzzed like a dynamo with voices.

After the announcement of the verdict, attorneys for Mr. Barnes objected to the receipt. The objection was overruled. The jury was thanked by Judge Andrews for its services, and it then filed out into the jury room.

Colonel Roosevelt broke off of saluting hands with his counsel and several newspaper men whom he had known for several years, and hurried to the jury room. There he thanked the jury and shook hands with each member and said:

"In my whole life I shall work in the interest of the public and none of you gentlemen shall ever have the chance to say that I have done otherwise."

The colonel was then photographed with the jury. After the picture had been taken the colonel turned to the jury and continued:

"I am more moved by this verdict than it is possible for me to express. Now you can assure you, will ever have cause to regret your action. I am especially gratified that such a verdict is made from a jury composed of men of every political faith."

The foreman of the jury said forty ballots in all were taken and the verdict was finally agreed upon. The first ballot, taken more than forty years before the jury came in today, was 3 to 2 in favor of the defendant. It remained at that figure for about five hours.

The colonel left the building in a crowd of friends who were scattered several jurymen. Before he separated from them he said:

"Gentlemen, this is certainly a typical American verdict. I want to thank you again."

Juror Burnes Cheered. A crowd gathered at the door of the court house, and cheered Juror Burnes as he left the building. Colonel Roosevelt declined to make any comment further than that which he made in the jury room. He said, however, that his attorney, John M. Bower, had prepared a statement which met with his approval.

Barnes to Take Appeal. New York, May 22.—William Evans, of counsel for William Barnes, announced this afternoon an appeal would be taken by the jury at Syracuse which found in favor of Theodore Roosevelt, in the trial of libel suit brought by Mr. Barnes against former President Roosevelt.

He said his daughter was despondent over the affair. In a letter to her sister, she threatened to end her life.

ITALIAN ARMY IN READINESS TO STRIKE AUSTRIA HEAVY BLOW

Top to bottom: Italian commissariat with supplies for army at Austrian frontier; Italian lancers on way to military camp at Austrian frontier; Italian Alpine troops marching through one of the towns near border.

The entrance of Italy into the war throws close to 2,000,000 thoroughly trained and splendidly equipped soldiers into the scale on the side of the allies. The months that have intervened between the outbreak of the war and Italy's intervention have been utilized in learning all the lessons to be taught by the campaigns on both fronts and in preparing both army and navy "to the last button."

Italy has had an army of at least 1,000,000 men massed along the Austrian frontier, facing a probably numerically inferior force of Germans and Austrians who, however, hold the upper ground and are undoubtedly strongly fortified. Military experts agree, however, that there is at least a strong probability that no serious attempt will be made to invade Austria by frontal attack.

LABOR WOULD UNITE FOR WORLD'S PEACE

Socialists of All Countries Would Co-operate in Preventing War for All Times.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, May 22.—The British Transport Workers' Federation has published a pamphlet, by its secretary, Robert Williams, summarizing the efforts of British Trades Unionists and Socialists during the past few years to unite the socialists of all the countries of Europe in an offensive and defensive alliance against war. The ideal of the British leaders was to make any international declaration of war the signal for a universal strike of all trade unionists in the countries affected.

The pamphlet deals in large part with the attitude of German socialists. As far back as 1910 efforts were made at the International Socialist congress at Copenhagen to pass a resolution advocating a general strike in the event of war between any of the great powers, says Mr. Williams. "When the resolution was passing through the preliminary stages of committee, it was superseded by an academic indictment of war, and by a resolution which referred the subject of general strike back to the various socialist and labor parties for further consideration and report. Their resolution was not to be placed before the convention. The international secretary wrote that the resolution should not be published for official reasons, as he feared that a hostile press would cause the governments of the various countries to adopt the severest possible means against those who were members of the international organization. 'Our forces,' he added, 'are not yet sufficient to cope with militarism.'"

Again in July, 1913, when the International Miners' Congress was held at Karlsruhe, the president of the British Federation made a similar proposal, but the president of the German union replied: "The Germans have always been of the opinion that it was not advisable to deal with the question of peace and war as a part of the program."

CLAIM THE DISCOVERY OF A SECRET POWDER FACTORY NEAR HOLLAND

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Havre, May 22.—News has been received from Holland to the effect that the Germans have discovered the secret of the manufacture of a special powder produced at the Cantele factory near the Dutch border in Belgium and are keeping the works going day and night. When the Belgians evacuated the region they flooded the region. The Germans then flooded the region. The employees refused to work and were expelled into Holland. The laboratories had been walled up and secret underground vaults containing plans and archives enclosed in heavy masonry and then covered with earth. The Germans explored the ground continually and finally unearthed the secret. They are said to have succeeded in drying 30 tons of powder that had been flooded. The powder is manufactured there was of a special kind used in cartridges made at the national arms factory at Herbesthal near Liege.

PRACTICALLY NO TOURISTS IN ZONES AROUND GERMANY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Berlin, May 22.—No tourist guidebooks, prospectuses and maps whatever may be sold in a belt 100 kilometers deep (slightly more than 60 miles) extending clear around the empire. Certain other districts are included in the prohibition. Popular tourist regions thus affected include all Posen, East and West Prussia, Pomerania, the Rhine, the Vosges, part of the Black Forest, the Elbe, the Bavarian Rhenishpalz and the Moselle region.

The prohibition does not mean that tourists may visit none of the places affected. Most of them may be visited as usual, even including the bathing resorts of the Baltic and the lake region of the Mecklenburgs.

RUSSIAN LANGUAGE IS "FAD OF THE HOUR" IN BRITISH SOCIETY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, May 22.—Russian is the popular language fad of the hour, and conversation classes are thriving in high society as well as among young men looking for commercial openings in Russia after the war. The King's College of the University of London plans to establish a school of Slavonic languages, to include Polish, Serbian and other Balkan tongues as well as Russian. An offer of an appropriate library for this purpose has been made by Saton Watson. There are now in King's college seventy Russian students, driven out of the German and Belgian universities, who are taking courses mostly in engineering and medicine.

EMPLOY REFUGEES AS INSTRUCTORS IN GERMANY

Berlin, May 22.—To provide employment for Germans possessing a knowledge of French and English, who fled to Germany at the outbreak of the war, the minister of education has empowered the authorities of higher schools and colleges to employ them as instructors of language without many of the usual formalities. Educated women similarly in need of employment can be taken into the middle and lower classes of boys' schools and may receive permission

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
The pupils of the land have been requested to devote some part of their service tomorrow to the interests of humane work in the animal kingdom, and thus round out the week set aside by the national organization to stir up enthusiasm for the better care and treatment of dumb animals.

The humane work in the animal kingdom is a work of the heart, and it is not one that can be done by the arm. It is a work of the heart, and it is not one that can be done by the arm.

sake of killing, and to slaughter for the profit there in. It is another feature which has to do with all of us. The average man is not a sportsman. He knows nothing about a gun and never owns one.

The animal kingdom is divided into two sections. One occupies the air, the water and the woods, and contributes to the pleasure and comfort of humanity. The other is domestic, and so closely associated with us as to be a part of our daily life.

The horse, the cow, the dog, and other domestic animals, render service which is seldom appreciated, and because these creatures are dumb and uncomplaining, they are often abused and neglected, and this is why humane people have interested themselves in their behalf.

The degree of intelligence in the realm of domestic animals, varies, and is largely a matter of breeding. The question is still debatable as to whether or not the mind is represented in this kind of intelligence.

When one of the heavy crop trains was loading at the railroad yards one night last year, it was interesting to watch the horses, as they came up with their loads, team after team, and fled into position without a loud word of command being spoken.

There was a light, except from the flaring torches, and escaping steam from the engines made the place hideous, yet every horse was loyal to his work, and as unconcerned as though grazing in a pasture.

Whatever these dumb creatures may or may not know, they have sensitive bodies, capable of suffering through neglect or abuse, and the fact that they are willing servants entitles them to more consideration than they always receive.

There was a time when it was fashionable to dock a horse's tail, but this brutal practice has been discontinued in this country, and with it to large extent, has gone the overdraw check, one of the most cruel devices ever invented.

The world's war, now in progress, has lowered the standards of values of all kinds of life. Men are slaughtered by the thousands, and others are ready to take their place in the trenches. There is no time for sentiment, and tomorrow is so universal that it excites but little attention.

No thought is given to the sacrifice and suffering which this war has brought to the animal kingdom. Horses are left to die by inches, on every battlefield, and their dumb appeal meets no response, except in doing efficient work.

The horse attracts more attention perhaps, than any other member of the animal kingdom, because of the service which he renders to mankind, and while this service is always a conscripted service, it is none the less valuable.

An intelligent horse, to a man who loves horses, comes close to being a companion. The horseless wheel may be peculiar but, with rare exception, it is never accused of being intelligent. The story is told of an Iowa farmer who went to town, the other day, in a Ford.

He proceeded to "tank up" and when he had finished, his friends loaded him in the car, headed it for home, and turned him loose. He landed all right and now Ford has a new advertising story. Horses have frequently turned this kind of a trick.

If you have never been mixed up with a gentle cow, at milking time, when the flies were furnishing entertainment, you have missed a choice experience out of your boyhood life. It wasn't her fault that she stepped in the pail, and ruined your Sunday suit, but you thought it was.

The household pets which doze in the corner, become as much a part of the family as the children, and the faithful dog has long been the subject of song and story. The great Creator gave us power and dominion over all living things, and a sacred obligation should prompt mercy and kindness in dealing with His creatures in the lower kingdom.

SNAP SHOTS

A man emerges from the hospital under his nurse's thumb. A woman emerges from the hospital with the nurse under her thumb.

The easiest way to earn a title is to have a newspaper reporter confer it on you.

Boys who have carried water to the elephants are plentiful enough. But those who have received a ticket to the circus for doing so are exceedingly rare.

Nearly every man proceeds upon the theory that the public would like to see his sore spots.

In the matter of providing a suitable background for jewels, nothing is so effective as a good looking woman.

A man takes the name his parents gave him and makes the best of it. A woman changes hers to one that better suits her fancy.

The more money you have the more your fun will cost you.

If a man is successful, that gives him license to talk. But it does not necessarily endow him with the faculty of saying anything worth while.

It is only occasionally that political reform carries beyond the campaign in which it was successful.

Made a Classification.
Some years ago a bridge was built in Japan which was so slight that a notice was put up: No Animals Allowed to Cross. But rats were seen crossing on it, and as they could not be stopped the sign was changed to read: "No Large Animals Allowed to Cross."

The Unpardonable Crime.
A man may forgive a lad who sets fire to orphan asylums and robs poor boxes. But the best he can ever say for a man who steals his turn in a barbaric shop is that he is a low-down swine snake eater.

There is no place you can dispose of any thing quickly and cheaply as through a classified ad. Try it and be convinced.

Appearances.
You can't most always sometimes tell what sort of stock will turn out well. The horse that's got the handsome face is not dead sure to win the race. The sleepy mule that looks most sick has always got the hardest kick. The gink who comes in from the woods delivers, oftentimes, the goods. The fellow with the eyes and hair has always got the best of the game. The finest looking bill of fare with solid cats is seldom there. The dapper chap with glossy tile is short on dough, though long on style.

The fellow with the loudest talk is sure, when duty calls, to balk. He from Missouri, 'tis as well. You can't most always sometimes tell.

There ain't nothing in this world that sounds as cheap as a lot of talk. The trouble with the life insurance agents is that they always pounce upon a fellow when he has got forty other things to do.

There ain't much use in trying $5,000 up in a car when a fellow can accomplish the same purpose in a jitney for five cents.

We can't see what keeps the chawin' tobacco factories going. Nobody will own up that he uses the stuff except ball players and telegraph operators.

FARMER YOUTHS SEE EXPERT JUDGE STOCK

PROF. TORMEY GIVES SOME VALUABLE ADVICE ON SELECTION OF FARM STOCK.

FORM BREEDERS' CLUB

A Number of Leading Stock Raisers Attend Meeting This Afternoon at the Fair Grounds.

A score or more of farmer boys of Rock county heard an excellent exposition of the important points in stock judging by Prof. John L. Torrey, of the Wisconsin agricultural college, department of animal husbandry, at the meeting arranged for this morning at the fair grounds by the Janesville Fair board. A number of older men were present and profited by the discussion. There were a number of leading stock breeders of the county in attendance at the session this afternoon, the purpose of which was to organize a Rock County Breeders' association.

Prof. Torrey at the morning meeting judged the animals on exhibition, emphasizing especially the points of value for market sale with the idea uppermost in his mind of being raised for butchering purposes.

Judging blanks similar to those used by the agricultural students at the university were distributed to the men and boys. The young men, following the lecture, marked the points on the card and took part in the judging of the stock. Prof. Torrey went over the cards and offered suggestions and criticisms.

C. C. Humphrey, organizer of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association, was the first speaker of the afternoon. Mr. Humphrey told of the advantages gained through such an organization. He was followed by Dr. S. A. Alexander of the university, who enlightened those present relative to the importance of ribbon winning horses.

One hundred breeders and farmers and breeders were present at the meeting this afternoon. In January 1910, there were 31 community breeders' associations in Wisconsin, the first having been organized in 1906 in Waushara county, as the Waushara Guernsey Breeders' association. There are now 110. Of these forty-eight are Holstein, thirty-five Guernsey, and the remainder are of other breeds. After May 22, 1915, it is confidently expected that there will be one more and that will be the one in Rock county if the plans that are now on foot work out as expected.

The advantages of such an organization are apparent to all who give the subject careful consideration. The rapid growth of these organizations is due to the success of the earlier ones, particularly to the Waushara Breeders' association, which has made considerable money, famous all over the United States and brought from all parts of the country thousands of dollars to the breeders of Waushara county. Part of their success is due to their system of co-operative advertising. Pick-up any of the leading dairymen and you will find the card of the Waushara Breeders' association with the name of the secretary, who will gladly answer any inquiry concerning the business may be addressed to him. One wants to buy a young bull or a heifer, a letter to the secretary will bring the desired information as to what to obtain and at what price. Another way in which such an association is of benefit to the community is by the purchase of pure bred males for breeding purposes. It often happens that a farmer having only a small number of individuals is hardly able to buy the sort of an animal he would prefer to breed to and such a one as to obtain the best of the breed. With co-operation, two or three farmers may combine in the purchase of such an animal. By exchanging animals, also, the members may improve their herds with good blood without importing expensive animals from a distance. Members may also combine in selling to fill large orders of a distinct dairy type.

Certain of selected animals have been shipped from Wisconsin to many of the middle states, the Pacific coast and even to Japan and Mexico. The result of such organizations, also, it is the duty of each member to improve his herd by mating his females exclusively with pure bred males, and to care for his herd in a systematic manner, the community established of reputation for high grade stock that will enable it to obtain prices corresponding to the quality represented. Through the meeting of the organization, its members are kept informed of the progress of all that relates to their work. Through co-operation they may also secure protection against fraud and contact with diseases and secure other advantages not available to the individual breeder. "In unity there is strength."

OVER NINE THOUSAND FLIES SLAUGHTERED

Past Week Why One for "Fly Swatters," Who Are Reimbursed Half of Usual Amount.

Despite the fact that the members of the "Fly Brigade" were informed last Saturday that they would be paid but half the usual amount for muzzling the disease spreading pests, every attempt to kill at opportune times during the week was taken, and as the result, 9,200 dead flies were counted by the managers of the Junior Civic League this morning.

Sixteen thousand two hundred mass-sacred flies were buried last week, that number being the record count for one week's efforts this spring. The children handing in their tickets this morning were paid but five cents per hundred, or half of the amount paid heretofore. The successful children this week are: Walter Meyer, Webster school, 3,000; Alfred Phillips, Adams school, 1,700; Beatrice March, St. Patrick's convent, 500; Joe Jastynski, Webster school, 500; and Otto Bugge, Garfield school, 200.

Next Saturday is the closing week of the fly campaign for this year. All children are expected to get into the race at the district and do their part toward cleaning up Janesville as a healthy spot, free from the diseases that are spread by the injurious fly pest.

The ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps wish to thank all those that bought tickets or in any way assisted to make the Jane Tuttle recitals a success.

WEATHER TO DECIDE BALL GAME SUNDAY

With Fair Weather Cardinals Will Open Season Tomorrow Against Fort Atkinson Team.

The standing of the mercury on Sunday will decide if the first ball game of the season will be staged at the Association Park between the Janesville Cardinals and the Fort Atkinson Crescents, for if cold weather prevails, the contest will not be scheduled. Under fair conditions the baseball lid will be pried off for the Cards season and the fans are hoping to see Old Sol sneak out from behind the misty clouds and spread the welcome sunshine over the diamonds and to warm the benches of the grandstand. Cold weather and baseball are not an invigorating combination.

If the game is scheduled, Cuddy Butters is due for his first start as the mound artist this year, and the catchers who have been the receiving end of Cuddy's throwing trials, declare that he is better than ever. Hall will be behind the bat. Chamberlain, of the Cards, will be on the relief list. Johnson, an Indiana leaguer, will be on hand to pitch. A team necessary. The infield will be composed of Nehr, at first, Croak, of Albany, at second with Johnson, at short, and Joe Ryan at third. The outfield will be composed of local men, former players with the Cards. Cook will do the umpiring. For Fort Atkinson, Johnson or Beebe is slated for the mound work.

The Ft. Atkinson team has been in previous games so has one advantage over the Cardinals. The games scheduled for the Cardinals thus far are as follows: Fairbanks Lodge team, of Beloit, at Beloit, July 11, and at Janesville, July 25; Madison, June 15; Rockford Maroons, June 27, and the United States Army on an undecided date.

CONTINUE TO ARGUE PIERCE INDICTMENT

Attorneys for President of Home Rule League Urge Motion to Quash Indictment.

Attorney for Charles E. Pierce, president of the Home Rule and Taxpayers League, continued their arguments this afternoon before Judge Felland at Madison on the motion of Mr. Pierce to quash the indictment against him as returned by the grand jury charging him with violation of the corrupt practices act. It is charged in the indictment that Pierce failed to report the expenses incurred by the league in connection with its activity in the last primary and general election campaigns. Mr. C. Richmond, representing Pierce, resumed the arguments which were continued from yesterday and at the conclusion Judge Felland took the case under advisement.

Otto A. Oestreich in his argument for quashing the indictment made to the court on Friday, contended that it was insufficient because it did not specify the particular acts constituting the alleged offense. The motion was further based upon the fact that the law was unconstitutional so far as it sought to restrict the rights of private citizens in exercising their privilege of free speech and publication of their sentiments on all subjects of the state. It did not cover or prohibit acts of gathering and disseminating information regarding the cost of state government.

Arguments were also presented in favor of the motion by John B. Sanborn and J. M. Clancy. District Attorney Southoff argued that the indictment was sufficient as it followed the language of the statute defining the offense; that acts alleged were offenses under the statute, and that Pierce could not rightfully claim immunity from indictment for testifying before the grand jury because he did so voluntarily.

HEALTH RESTORED BY THE MILK AND REST TREATMENT

The gifted writer, Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, says: "I believe in the healthfulness of milk and rest."

A New York doctor says that of the best means for restoring health is the MILK DIET. He treated a patient who had been suffering from a long illness, and who had failed to get beneficial and lasting results. I have taken this treatment and given it to several others who have spoken of it as being simply and wonderfully effective. For full particulars see DR. M. A. CUNNINGHAM.

Russia's Vast Resources.

Russia lacks only ten longitudinal degrees of stretching half way round the earth, and possesses one-sixth of the landed area of the planet. Russia's Asiatic possessions are forty times as great as those of Japan, even since the new Asiatic balance that followed the Russo-Japanese war. The variety of Russia's resources make the empire second only to the United States as the greatest food producing country in the world. It leads all nations in mineral wealth and timber supply.

Voice Not the Only Essential for Grand Opera Success.

A short interview with some of the leading artists of the Sheehan Opera Company, which comes to the Myers on Sunday evening, May 30th, in the mammoth production of "Cleopatra and Cavalleria Rusticana" seems to develop the fact that there is at least one subject on which opera stars agree, and that is, that there is much more than a good voice necessary to acquire success in grand opera. That is, why great opera singers are so scarce, and why they command such huge salaries.

It is said that each generation produces only one or two great tenors of opera. Joseph F. Sheehan, the famous opera star, is without question the one of the present generation. It is conceded that he is one of the foremost American tenors of the day. Luckily, he also has great histrionic ability. In other words, he acts as well as he sings. That is what makes his impersonations so enjoyable.

Miss Mercedes Delmada, the eminent contralto, although the possessor of one of the greatest contralto voices heard in recent years, is inclined to place—particularly in such roles as in the Klondike, but the real strike appears to have been on the Yukon (by George Carmack, on Indian Creek) in 1896, and the rush was on full tide by the next year. Then came the beach strike at Nome, and the miners and prospectors began swarming the seaward, washing out the gold beach, nudly picking and piling up the frozen tundra for placers. In 1898, the railroad men, already adventurous, threw a line across Chilkoot Pass, to Lake Lindemann, shortening the distance from tidewater to the headwaters of the Yukon, from a month to a day, and a little later another road, the White Horse Pass and Yukon R. R., surmounted the White Pass, opening the territory to the rich country of Alaska.

Thrilling and romantic were the adventures of the Argonauts when the great gold rush led to California over three score years ago; and this has been repeated with more trials and vast variations through the many "strikes" in Alaska. The frenzied gold seekers in these latter rushes, dazed freezing and courted starvation long sailings over Arctic seas for the shining metal that glimmered in the sands or was buried in the frozen tundra. Six months after Dawson was established as a camp on the Yukon, 100,000 people were there, and a year later, when the strike was reported land in the early nineteenth century. Miss Clark's winsome personality, her piquant beauty and elfin grace assist her in making the tantalizing and bewitching role of Dolly Erskine an ideal character creation.

"Gretna Green" is named after the famed locality in the northern part of Scotland, where during the nineteenth century romantic couples whose marriages were opposed by stony-hearted parents could come and wed without the requirements of parental consent. And, according to the custom of this arcaid country, it did not make a particle of difference who performed the ceremony. Once within the lines of Gretna, the spoken word was enough to bind the sloping couple. And it is thus that Dolly, after warning the incognito Earl of Basset that she would never marry him, finds herself in a compromising position and in order to save the honor of her married sister, who was eloping with another man, tells all that the supposed riding-master (the disguised earl) is her husband. This casual remark is enough to bind her to the Earl in reality, according to the law of the period. How she finally learns of the Earl's true identity and is convinced that she really loves the man she tried to hate, is developed in a highly pleasing and amusing manner. The subject is replete with romance, fun, drama that more than once throughout the production is intensely gripping, and the sentiment and sunshine that Miss Clark so generously circulates.

This notable feature with this prominent and popular star will be shown for one day only.

the one she has in Cleopatra—acting above singing. It is Miss Dye's contention that without a clear understanding of the meaning of this character and the ability to convey that meaning to the audience, the most beautiful voice in the world would be of no avail.

Miss Mirth Carmen, the brilliant prima donna, likewise has decided opinions on this subject. Miss Carmen contends that unless an artist has the sympathy of her audience and can make them understand the emotions which saturate her part, her performance is not a success. In fact, every member of the company seems to be in accord with this opinion and with a group of artists it was meeting to discuss the subject, they said that the performance of Cleopatra and Cavalleria Rusticana given by the Sheehan Opera Company will be an unusual one.

Anent Alaska.

Much criticism was excited over the United States' purchase of Alaska in 1867. It was denounced as a high-handed outrage, a senseless purchase of valueless property, a useless, barren far-away land, with nothing but a few Indians in a desolate country, or seals on its ice-bound coast. The original purchase price of this territory, which has an area equal to one-fourth of the entire United States, was $7,200,000.00, and at the time it has returned to us in furs, fisheries and minerals $500,000,000.00. At the time of these congressional debates, it was frequently emphasized that there was then "better God nor law north of the 53 degree." The same argument had been used when the heroic missionary, Marcus Whitman, made his wonderful journey from beyond the crest of the Rockies to Washington, to secure Oregon for the Union. As the brave and gallant missionary saved for his country one of the most beautiful states of the Union, so the tireless prospectors, traders, hardy soldiers, and their adventuresome followers have developed another territory much of which lies up beyond the Arctic Circle. This great, new Alaska is a land teeming with riches, and there the Americans have established a law where none existed before; have built cities and are making a new empire in this wonderful land of the Midnight Sun.

The unusual conditions that attended the gold strikes in Alaska will never again be duplicated in history, as in all probability the last great sensation of gold finds on this continent have been accomplished. It remained for Rex Beach, in the realistic, red-blooded romance, "The Spoilers," to save these historical episodes not only for the delectation of the future, but to accomplish an even greater service in preventing the spoliation of the great, natural resources of this new northwest, through the scheming force of graft, really accomplishing great things for the gold claims for their original owners, protecting the timber, and conserving for the nation the vastest fields of coal in the world. From time to time, it has been given to the great romances to illuminate fiction with facts that carry conviction and effect great reforms. The works of Charles Dickens are notable in this regard, and certainly no work of modern fiction accomplished greater things for establishing the dignity of law and national resources, than Rex Beach's startlingly significant story, "The Spoilers."

Up to 1895, the chief industries in this vast territory, comprising over 581,000 square miles, and a coast line nearly 20,000 miles, had been confined to sealing and salmon fishing. It was claimed that Robert Henderson washed coarse gold ten years before at Nome, two-thirds of them pulled stakes and fled to those gold beaches of the waters of the Behring sea.

These big movements of armies of invasions really made history—history that will never be repeated; so that the reproduced scenes of the film have given romance a new and vigorous value, and have indelibly retained a bit of modern history in the taking and the making of the new northwest.

Edith Wynne Mathison Makes Her Screen Debut.

Edith Wynne Mathison, Sir Henry Triggs' leading woman during his farewell tours, who is considered by many authorities to be the foremost dramatic artist of the English-speaking legitimate stage, makes her first appearance on the screen on Monday at the Apollo, assuming the title role in the great Lasky-Belasco production of Belasco's hit, "The Governor's Lady." It is gratifying to learn that Miss Mathison photographs admirably, and that her art, in its most supreme expression, is therefore destined to be immortalized. James Neil portrays the role of Dane Slade and Miss Mathison the role of the most charming of the rising young actresses of the stage plays the part of Katherine with whom Dan is introduced for a time.

The story starts in the mountain home of Slades and ends there. Dan discovers gold moves to the city, gets into politics and becomes governor of the state. His wife does not care for the life and Dan drifts away from her after becoming acquainted with Katherine. They are happily reunited at the close of course, but the story is a very interesting one meanwhile.

Robert Edison in "Man's Perogative" On Tuesday the Apollo will present the Mutual Masterpiece, "Man's Perogative" in which are featured Robert Edison and Mary Alden. This is the first of the Mutual Photoplays which have been advertised so extensively in the Saturday Evening Post. Elizabeth, the beautiful wife of Oliver, a distinguished lawyer, firmly believes that there should be one moral code alike for man and woman, consequently when her husband carries on a flirtation with a pretty young woman, she decides to awaken him to a sense of his folly by pretending to accept the attentions of a young man. The result is that Oliver loses faith in his wife and they are divorced. The dying confession of the man, however, clears her of suspicion and Elizabeth and Oliver are remarried, but society continues to believe her presents. This is the problem the play presents: Is the double standard of morals ever justified?

Marguerite Clark on Wednesday. Marguerite Clark, the dainty diminutive, magnetic star of "Wildflower," "The Crucible," and "The Goose Girl," attains another superb screen triumph in the latest Famous Players production, a four-part adaptation of Grace Livingston Furniss' charming comedy-drama, "Gretna Green," the attraction at the Apollo, Wednesday, on the Paramount Program. To find herself married to the man whom she actually believes she detests is the unusual position Miss Clark finds herself in at the climatic period of her northern romance. "I shudder to think of what would have happened if we had, sir," said he, meaning no doubt to placate me. "Mr. Poopendyke says the countess has been up all night worrying about you, sir. She has been distracted. She wanted to go out and search for you at 4 o'clock this morning, but he says he assured her you'd turn up all right. He says Mrs.—the elderly lady, begging your pardon, sir—thought she was doing for the best when she took a special. She wanted to save us all the trouble she could. He says she was very much distressed by our failure to have some one meet her with a launch when she got here last night, sir. As it was, she didn't reach the castle until nearly 1, and she looked like a drowned rat when she got there, being her—exposed to a beastly rain-storm. See what I mean? She went to bed in a dreadful state, he says, but thinks she'll be more pleasant because the day is over."

"She appears to be sleeping in your bed, sir, he says."

I burst into a fit of laughter. "Hurrah!" I shouted exultantly. "Well, by Jove, I don't feel half as bad as I did five minutes ago. Come, let us be off."

We started briskly down the street. My spirits were beginning to rebound. Poopendyke had said that she worried all night about me. She had been distracted. Poor little woman! Still I was glad to know that she had the grace to sit up and worry instead of going to sleep as she might have done. I was just mean enough to be happy over it.

Poopendyke met us on the town side of the river. He seemed a trifle haggard, I thought. He was not slow, on the other hand, to announce in hoarse, strident tones that I looked like a ghost.

"You must get those wet clothes off at once, Mr. Smart, and go to bed with a hot water bottle and ten grains of quinine. You'll be very ill if you don't. Put a lot more elbow grease into those plans, Max. Get a move on you. Do you want Mr. Smart to die of pneumonia?"

CHAPTER XIX.

I Meet Mrs. Titus.

WHILE we were crossing the muddy stream my secretary, his teeth chattering with cold and excitement, related the story of the night.

"We were just starting off for the boat-house up the river, according to plans, Max and Rudolph and I with the two boats, when the countess came down in a mackintosh and a pair of gum boots and 'insisted upon' going along with us. She said it wasn't fair to make you do all the work and all that sort of thing. While we were arguing with her—and it was getting so late that I feared we wouldn't be in time to meet you—we heard some one shouting on the opposite side of the river. The voice sounded something like Britton's, and the countess insisted that there had been an accident and that you were hurt, Mr. Smart, and nothing would do but we must send Max and Rudolph over to see what the trouble was. It was raining cats and dogs, and I realized that it would be impossible for you to get a boatman on that side at that hour of the night—it was nearly 1—so I sent the two Schmicks across. I've never seen a night as dark as it was. The two little lanterns bobbing in the boat could hardly be seen through the torrents of rain, and it was next to impossible to see the lights on the opposite landing stage—just a dull, misty glow.

"To make the story short, Mrs. Titus and her sons were over there, with absolutely no means of crossing the river. It took two trips over to fetch the whole party across. Raining pitch-forks all the time, you understand. Mrs. Titus was foaming at the mouth because you don't own a yacht or at least a launch with a canopy top or a limousine body or something of the sort.

"I didn't have much of a chance to converse with her. The countess tried to get her upstairs in the east wing, but she wouldn't climb another step. I forgot to mention that the windlass was out of order and she had to climb the hill to find six inches deep. The Schmicks carried her the last half of the distance. She insisted on sleeping in the hall or the study—anywhere but upstairs. I assumed the responsibility of putting her in your bed, sir. It was either that or—"

I broke in sarcastically. "You couldn't have put her into your bed, I suppose." "Not very handsly, Mr. Smart," he said in an injured voice. "One of her sons occupied my bed. Of course it was all right, because I didn't intend to go to bed, as it happened. The older son went upstairs with the countess. She gave up her bed to him, and then she and I sat up all night in the study waiting for a telephone message from you. The younger son explained a good many things to us that his mother absolutely refused to discuss. She was so mad when she got here. It seems she took it into her head at the last minute to charter a special train, but forgot to notify us of the switch in the plans. She traveled by the regular train from Paris to some place along the line, where she got out and waited for the special which was following along behind, straight from Paris too. A awful waste of money, it seemed to me. Her idea was to throw a couple of plain clothes men off the track, and, by George, sir, she succeeded. They thought she was changing from a train to some place in Switzerland and went off to watch the other station. Then she snuck aboard the special, which was chartered clear through to Vienna. See how clever she is? If they followed on the next train or telegraphed it would naturally be to Vienna. She got off at this place, and—well, we have her with us, sir, as snug as a bug in a rug."

"What is she like, Fred?" I inquired. "I confess that I hung on his reply. 'I have never seen a wet hen, but I should say on a guess that she's a good bit like one. Perhaps when she's thoroughly dried out she may not be so bad, but—' he drew a long, deep breath—'but upon my word of honor she was the limit last night. Of course one couldn't expect her to be exactly gracious, with her hair plastered over her face and her hat spotted and her clothes soaked, but there was really no excuse for some of the things she said to me. I shall overlook them for your sake and for the countess.' He was painfully red in the face.

"The conditions, Fred," I said, "were scarcely conducive to polite persiflage." "But, hang it all, I was as wet as she was," he exploded so violently that I knew his soul must have been tried to the utmost.

"We must try to make the best of it," I said. "It will not be for long." The thought of it somehow sent my heart back to its lowest level.

He was glum and silent for a few minutes. Then he said, as if he thought had been on his mind for some hours: "She isn't a day over forty-five. It doesn't seem possible, with a six foot son twenty-five years old."

Grimly I explained. "They marry quite young when it's for money, Fred."

"I suppose that's it," he sighed. "I fancy she's handsome, too, when she hasn't been ruined upon."

We were halfway up the slope when he announced nervously that all of my dry clothing was in the closet off my bedroom and could not be got at under any circumstance.

"But," he said, "I have laid out my best frock coat and trousers for you and a complete change of linen. You are quite welcome to anything I possess, Mr. Smart. I think if you take a couple of rolls at the bottom of the trousers they'll be presentable. The countess may be a little long for you, but—"

My loud laughter cut him short. "It's the best I could do," he said in an aggrieved voice. I had a secret hope that the countess would be in the courtyard to welcome me, but I was disappointed. Old Gretel met me and wept over me, as if I was not already sufficiently moist. The chef came running out to say that breakfast would be ready for me when I desired it; Blatchford felt of my coat sleeve and told me that I was quite wet; Hawkes had two large, steaming toddlers waiting for us in the vestibule, apparently fearing that we could get no farther without the aid of a stimulant. But there was no sign of a single Titus.

Later I ventured forth in Poopendyke's best suit of clothes, the one he uses when he passes the plate on Sundays in faraway Yonkers. It smelled of moth balls, but it was gloriously dry, so why care? We spoke down the corridor past my own bedroom door and stole into the study.

Just inside the door I stopped in amazement. The countess was sound asleep in my big armchair, a forlorn but lovely thing in a pink peignoir. Her rumpled brown hair nestled in the angle of the chair; her hands drooped listlessly at her sides; dark lashes lay upon the soft white cheeks; her lips were parted ever so slightly, and her bosom rose and fell in the long swell of perfect repose.

Poopendyke clutched me by the arm and drew me toward the door or I might have stood there transfixed for heaven knows how long. "She's asleep," he whispered. It was the second time in twelve hours that some one had intimated that I was blind.

The door creaked villainously. The faint, ecclesiastical tails of my borrowed frock coat were on the verge of being safely outside with me when she cried out, whereupon I swiftly transposed myself and stuck my head through the half-open door.

"Oh, it's you!" she cried, in a quavery voice. She was leaning forward in the chair, her eyes wide open and eager. I advanced into the room. A look of doubt sprang into her face. She stared for a moment and then rather piteously rubbed her eyes.

"Yes, it is I," said I, spreading my arms in such a way that my hands emerged from the confines of Poopendyke's sleeves. (Upon my word, I had no idea that he was so much longer than I.) "It is still I, countess, despite the shrinkage."

"The shrinkage?" she murmured, slowly sliding out of the chair. As she unbent her cramped leg she made a little grimace of pain, but smiled as she limped toward me, her hand extended.

"Yes, I always shrink when I get wet," I explained, resorting to facetiousness.

Then I bent over her hand and kissed it. As I neglected to release it at once, the cuff of Poopendyke's best coat slid down over our two hands, completely enveloping them. It was too much for me to stand. I squeezed her hand with painful fervor and then released it in trepidation.

"Poopendyke goes to church in it," I said vaguely, leaving her to guess what it was that Poopendyke went to church in, or, perhaps, knowing what I meant, how I happened to be in it for the time being. "You've been crying!"

Her eyes were red and suspiciously moist.

As she met my concerned gaze, a wavering, whimsical smile crept into her face.

"It has been a disgustingly wet night," she said. "Oh, you don't know how happy I am to see you standing here once more, safe and sound, and—amiable. I expected you to growl and growl and—"

"On a bright, glorious, sunshiny morning like this?" I cried. "Never! I prefer to be graciously refulgent. Our troubles are behind us."

"How good you are!" After a moment's careful scrutiny of my face she added, "I can see the traces of very black thoughts, Mr. Smart, and recent ones."

"They were black until I came into this room," I confessed. "Now they are rose tinted."

Dinner Stories

Little Timothy went to visit his Aunt Elvira, a dignified and severe woman, who owned a parrot. One morning, coming unexpectedly upon Timothy and the bird, she was horribly shocked to hear the little boy using some profane words.

"Why, Timothy," cried the old lady, "do believe you're trying to teach my parrot to swear!"

"Oh, no, I'm not, Auntie," the boy replied. "I'm just telling it what it mustn't say."

"My dear," remarked Professor Blake's wife, as he came downstairs dressed to escort her to the theater, "I don't like the tie you have on. I wish you would change to a black one."

The professor went upstairs to make the suggested change. After many minutes of impatient waiting, his wife followed. His tie removed, the professor's attention immediately continued the undressing process.

The people who built the Pyramids did a job that has never been beaten. From foundations to cap-stones they were constructed to endure.

There was no overweight anywhere and no part was too weak or too light to match the other parts. Hence the lasting qualities of the Pyramids. Diamond Tires are built, as the Pyramids were built, to last.

Every part is made to wear just as long as the other parts endure. Consequently Diamond Squeegie Tread Tires made a record in 1914 that has never been matched.

Efficiency Must Come First. We usually think of revolutions as revolts against despotism, and as making for liberty. That isn't necessarily so. The great Roman revolution was a series of upheavals by which the Roman republic was transformed into an empire. The reason was that the republic failed in efficiency. That is why all persons with the historical sense feel that politicians who sacrifice efficiency to politics are in a very deep sense enemies to the republic.

ALFALFA IN COUNTY IS SOWN BY FARMERS

WEST LOOKS FOR "ALFALFA ON EVERY FARM" IN TIME.

GIVES EARLY ADVICE

Field Should be Disked and Harrowed Often Before Sowing.

(By A. B. West.)

Rock county is moving toward the ideal alfalfa on every farm. Some farmers have already sown their seed, and others are waiting for the ground to be in condition for sowing later. A preparation of the ground is important. The field to be sown should be disked and harrowed often enough to clean it of weeds. On average fields the weed killing process need not be continued after June 1st, but very weedy land should be harrowed and disked until July 1 or even until August 1st. It is not safe to sow alfalfa until, on account of winter killing, though sometimes such seedling have been successful when rain has been abundant.

Soil Inoculation. The question of inoculation for alfalfa is one that troubles some who are trying to grow this crop in most places in Wisconsin. Inoculation is necessary. This may be done in different ways. Just before sowing the alfalfa seed a ton of soil from good alfalfa field or from the roadside where sweet clover is growing may be sown on each acre to be seeded. Or alfalfa seed may be mixed with seed, about equal parts of soil and seed by weight, the soil and seed to be sown by hand. This is practical where only an acre or two are to be sown and farmers are advised to begin with a small acreage and increase as they learn the needs of the plant on their farms. Or if one wishes to go to the trouble of sowing the soil it may be sown through the fertilizer attachment on a drill. Two hundred pounds or more of sifted soil will be sufficient for an acre and is best applied through the hose. More will be necessary if it is broadcasted and the work should be done on a cloudy day or in early morning or late evening, as the sun's rays are injurious to the bacteria of the soil which, which in this case is a thin layer on top. The field should be that case be immediately harrowed. Where soil has to be transported any distance, this method of inoculation is expensive and may introduce plant diseases. In most districts in Rock county, however, where in many places sweet clover grows abundantly and where alfalfa is raised, it is comparatively easy to obtain inoculating soil.

Pure Culture Inoculation. For many years the United States department of agriculture has cultivated and distributed pure cultures of bacteria for leguminous crops, and in some instances they have given good results. The bureau of plant industry is carrying on field experiments to determine, if possible, what soil conditions are most favorable for the successful inoculation of leguminous crops by use of pure cultures, and also to determine under what conditions it is useless to attempt to inoculate certain of the legumes without some radical change in the method of fertilizing or cultivating the field. To extend this experimental work as far as possible, the department of agriculture is willing to supply cultures in limited quantities, requiring only the filling in of blank reports which are occasionally forwarded for this purpose. Only a limited quantity, however, will be sent to any one farmer. With an acre field thoroughly inoculated in this way an abundant supply of field soil is available for the inoculation of a more extensive area the next season. The writer is prepared to furnish a limited number of application blanks for this purpose. These blanks must be filled out and sent to the bureau of plant industry, Washington, D. C., at least two weeks before the seed is to be inoculated.

Complete directions for use are mailed with each bottle of liquid pure culture and it is most important that these directions be followed to the letter. Failure often results from carelessness in this and the failure to lead to the culture instead of to the carelessness of the operator. The government has cultures not only for alfalfa but for important leguminous crops, the success of which in enrichment depends upon these bacteria. They are alfalfa, beans, clover, cow peas, lentils, lupines, pea, peanut, soybeans, vetch, and other legumes. Each of these bacteria, but all perform the important function of imparting nitrogen to the soil, which they secure from the air.

It is most important that the field to be sown to any of these crops and especially to alfalfa be thoroughly prepared in the case of any alfalfa. It should be disked and harrowed to raise alfalfa without first making the test to determine whether or not the soil is sour. Guessing at it may be a costly error. Much of the soil is acid though it may grow good crops of corn and no one need go to the bother of inoculating acid soil, for it is bound to be a failure. The soil should also have a good supply of phosphate and potash, which is obtained from manure or commercial fertilizer.

"Great Debts From Little Apples Grow."

Three boys were scattered in different positions over the stretch of public highway which was in front of the Thorgate residence. These boys, Winsor, Harold and Cleland Hunter, were engaged in playing that derivative of baseball known commonly as "one die cat". Harold was standing on a fragment of a peach basket which was doing duty as a pitcher's box, and was preparing to deliver the ball.

Winsor was the batter. With a careful imitation of pictures which he had seen of famous players, he balanced a broomstick over his shoulder. Harold transformed his arm into a miniature windmill for a moment and then, with a flourish, he pitched the ball. Winsor swung his stick at it as it approached, and to the surprise of his two companions, he sent it sailing into the air with a sharp crack resulted.

Three yelled the batter, as he started on a dash for the tree a few feet distant. The ball took a diagonal course from the place where it had come in contact with the bat, and, missing the sidewalk at a fair rate of speed, came to a stop in the middle of the flourishing garden which was the pride of Mr. Columbus Royce's heart. In his declining years, Mr. Royce had little to interest him except this little patch of ground, and at the present time he was becoming aware of a nearer approach of the ball than the old man raised his head, in time to see Harold, who was intent on recovering the ball, before Winsor could score. A dash into a tangle of vines, destroy an entire hill of potatoes, and crush four radish plants out of existence.

"Get out of my garden, you young rascal, you!" he cried, appalled at the destruction of his vegetables. "You little vermin, clear out!"

Harold looked up in astonishment. "What—what?" he began. Then his eyes beheld the enraged master of the garden bearing down upon him. There was fire in his eyes, and danger in his look. It was enough to try the courage of an older boy. Harold wheeled swiftly and fled.

Mr. Royce gave chase to the edge of his domain, and hurled threats and imprecations the rest of the way. The three boys, perplexed and frightened, came to a stop at the other side of the road, and looked back in surprise. Such a demonstration was new to all of them. Winsor had known Mr. Royce since he was a boy, and had even entertained a faint liking for the old fellow, but as the man stood there, shaking a batry fist in his direction, the blue veins standing out on the forehead of his red-faced face, all such affections vanished.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourselves," he blazed, "you walk all over my garden, and spoil the results of a man's hard work. I'll go to your mother, I swear I will."

Every normal boy has an irresistible desire to "talk back" to his elders. Unpractical as no exception. With an assumption of bravado, he did not feel, he remarked, "Don't Mr. Columbus, you swear enough anyway."

His actions had lit the fuse; his words now exploded the bomb. Mr. Royce did not wait for the boys to hear the window in Thorgate's house as it was raised. None saw Mrs. Thorgate's head as it was thrust out.

"What? Mr. Royce! What does this mean?"

The one addressed stopped in the middle of a sentence telling the boys that they could go to thunder for their old ball as far as he cared, to stare, open mouthed at the unlooked for intruder.

Cleland took advantage of the arrival of the reinforcements to beat a hasty retreat. Winsor and Harold, however, were too deeply interested in the affair to follow suit. Winsor forped a loud laugh as Mr. Columbus Royce roared vainly for words. The laugh proved far better than a dictionary of synonyms. The old man immediately found something to say.

"You've got to make those boys play on the other side of the house," he announced. "I won't allow them to play here. They are ruinin' all over my garden, an' tramping 'what's growin' an' on purpose, too."

A glance told Mrs. Thorgate the state of affairs. Winsor, she asked, "Have you been tramping on Mr. Royce's garden?"

"No, I ain't," the boy indignantly denied. "We wuz playin' ball an' I hit the ball on his garden, an' Harold went after it. That's all we did, honest."

Harold affirmed the statement with a nod. "I just walked over to pick the ball up an' he got mad an' chased me," he added.

Mrs. Thorgate did not reply for a moment. Then she said, "You boys had better go over to Harold's house. I want to talk to Mr. Royce alone."

"All right," Winsor agreed. "C'm on Harold." They followed Cleland's footsteps around the house and over the back fence. Their companion was there, seated on a stump, awaiting them.

"Hi, guys," he greeted, "what happened?"

"Aw, my ma came out an' sent us away," Winsor answered. "Ain't ole Royce a mul' though?"

"I guess he is," said Harold. "I never knew he was like that. He swiped our ball, too."

"That's stealing," Winsor asserted. "He won't we, though?" Affirmed Harold. "We'll jump all over his garden, an' throw things on it an' every thing."

A vision of a satisfying revenge was already before his eyes. He should think you kids'd be afraid to do things like that," Cleland ventured.

"Afraid!" Winsor scoffed. "Do you remember last winter when ole man couldn't slide a hill with our sleds. Remember what we did to him. We're going to do a lot more tonight. You just come with us an' see."

"Wish I could," the boy lamented, in a tone portraying a combination of wishfulness and timidity, "but my ma wouldn't let me."

"You wouldn't tell her where you wuz goin' would you?" asked Harold. "Just say you wuz goin' to Winsor's or some place."

But Cleland kept discreet silence. "Aw, you're afraid to," Winsor jeered. "Anyway, you're nothin' but a tattletale. C'm on Harold, let's go over to left their late friend's disconsolate, on the stump, and proceeded to Harold's home, by means of back yards and alleys."

A time, their talk was of the proposed revenge on Mr. Royce, but later it drifted to the subject of the circus which was billed to appear in the town the following day.

"I've got fifteen cents," said Winsor.

an' that'll take me to it. How much have you got?"

"Ten," was the reply. "But I guess you'll give me a nickel."

They soon reached their destination, where the remainder of the afternoon was spent in the continuation of the ball game. At six o'clock they bid each other "so long" and, with Harold's promise to be outside of Thorgate's house as soon as it was dark, Winsor took his departure. As he passed the home of Mr. Royce, he tossed a stone into the garden, and uttered a few whoops which would have done credit to an Indian and which were very uncomplimentary to the owner of precious patch of vegetable garden.

Mr. Royce's response greeted the boys, however, and Winsor smiled grimly as he thought of the response which would greet an effort to be made later in the evening.

Winsor looked up at the supper table as he heard a long, low whistle outside. "Can I go over to Harold's, mamma?" he asked. And without waiting for an answer, he snatched his coat and rushed out.

"Harold," he called softly, as he came outside. "Where are you?"

"Here," came the answer from a nearby tree. "The lights are out in Royce's house. What'll we do?"

"I'll go down he just put 'em out because he's too stingy to burn oil," said Winsor. "He's there, all right. Now what'll we do first?"

"I dunno. Let's pull up all his potatoes. We'll go over first an' pull some, an' then I will."

"I guess not. You gotta go first, an' I'll be here an' keep watch."

"I tell you what," Winsor suddenly announced. "We'll throw some of those apples from our tree over our house so they 'light on his garden."

"I'm game," Harold replied, bending down to pick up one of the many green apples which had fallen from a nearby tree. He hurried it high over the house. There was silence for a moment. Then, a crash.

"A window!" Winsor breathed. "You threw the apple too far, Harold. 'Wow!' exclaimed a shaking voice, 'do you suppose it was?'"

They rushed around the corner of the house where a clear view of Mr. Royce's house was obtained. Lights were already appearing and the figure of Mr. Royce, himself, was clearly visible peering out of a window, and the pane of the window was shattered!

When Winsor awoke the next morning, the voice of Mr. Royce was audible downstairs. Quaking, he remained in his room until a slam indicated the visitor had departed. His mother met him as he descended the stairs.

"Winsor," said she, "Did you break Mr. Royce's window?"

The boy's face turned fiery red, and he stammered something. "Harold was with you, wasn't he?" his mother went on.

"Yes."

"And who broke the window?" she inquired. It was against Winsor's code of honor. "Tells on Harold," he only answered. "Both of us."

Then, seeing an ominous look in her eyes, he added, "We didn't mean to do the highest."

His mother almost smiled at this statement, but she only said, "It will cost twenty-five cents to fix it and Harold will have to pay for it."

Winsor wilted at the announcement. He had fifteen cents, Harold ten, and the circus was that afternoon. "I'm awful sorry, mamma," he said truthfully.

HAS RIGHT HAND CRUSHED IN SHREDDER ACCIDENT; AMPUTATION NECESSARY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Whitewater, May 21—Dr. Arthur Teeshorn, who called to his home at 10:30 a. m. yesterday afternoon by the terrible accident which forced him to his brother, Fred Teeshorn.

While passing a little shredding, as was proved far better than a dictionary of synonyms. The old man immediately found something to say.

"You've got to make those boys play on the other side of the house," he announced. "I won't allow them to play here. They are ruinin' all over my garden, an' tramping 'what's growin' an' on purpose, too."

"You wouldn't tell her where you wuz goin' would you?" asked Harold. "Just say you wuz goin' to Winsor's or some place."

But Cleland kept discreet silence. "Aw, you're afraid to," Winsor jeered. "Anyway, you're nothin' but a tattletale. C'm on Harold, let's go over to left their late friend's disconsolate, on the stump, and proceeded to Harold's home, by means of back yards and alleys."

USES A MOTORCYCLE TO REACH STUDENTS

ALLEN B. WEST WILL WORK WITH 100 YOUNG PEOPLE DURING SUMMER MONTHS.

PLANS SUMMER WORK

High School Instructor Visits Homes of His "Agric" Students, Aiding Them in Various Lines.

Added instruction through personal visits by the use of a motorcycle, is the newest thing in the science of teaching, and has been introduced at the Janesville high school by Allen B. West, instructor in agriculture. Mr. West has been the proud owner of his new motor vehicle for about six weeks, and despite his age, rides to Janesville every morning from his Milton Junction home, returning every afternoon, when weather permits or when the roads are in fit condition.

Mr. West proposes to accomplish a great end by means of his racing car. In his agricultural classes, there are fifty students, about fifteen of them living in the country, and the other thirty-five scattered throughout Janesville. Home project work that needs inspection will be given careful watching by the instructor during the summer months. What work an "agric" student is doing nowadays at his home, is beneficial to him in more than one way. Besides getting the experience, which is a lot, he gets credit for what he does at home on the class records at the high school. To date, Mr. West has visited forty-eight of the fifty "agric" students. All of his agricultural students are boys, there being no girls desirous of taking this work.

Hired by Board. The board of education has hired him to work among his students and girls of the graded schools of the city, who have planned garden work some of this work having already been commenced. The motorcycle will carry Mr. West just throughout the city and into the country during July and August.

Twice during the two months assigned to him, Mr. West expects to visit his regular students, in addition to paying the graded school children occasional visits. Assuming that a visit will take an hour, it will keep him going all the time to assist the young people as frequently as his schedule calls for such visits. A visit will mean not only the explaining of the work at hand, but of the taking to the young people the most advantageous method used to obtain better results on shrubbery, plants, etc.

Exhibits at Fair. Contests, exhibits, and shows will be arranged for during the summer. Committees will be appointed at times to inspect and pass judgment on the work of the thrifty students. To cap the climax, Mr. West will give the young people the opportunity of entering their specimens of shrubbery or whatever they might be growing, at the Janesville fair in August, and try for prizes to be awarded. Stock, corn and potato judging contests will be held at the fair, with prizes on for the best agricultural and other products.

The new motorcycle should serve as a handy contrivance for Mr. West in his work of inspection at the various homes. He purchased it with this idea in view and hopes to beautify many of the lawns at the next three months. As the work has already been started to a large extent, there should be little trouble in hastening early results with proper attention.

The commencement exercises of the Milton Pratt Institute were held Wednesday, May 19, at 3 o'clock, with Oration—Emanicipation of Women.

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the White Water commission was authorized and ordered to construct a cover for the reservoir at the pumping station, according to plans and specifications on file with the secretary. There being enough money in the water works fund to construct said cover, it was ordered that it be used. The cover will be of cement and the Whitewater Bridge company has the contract to build it. It will take 400 barrels of false work and ten carloads of sand. The work will be completed and the weight of the cover is estimated at over 300 tons.

One of World's Oldest Cities.

Not only is the Russian city of Archangel interesting as a city in the extreme far North, but it is still more interesting as one of the most ancient cities built upon the fringe of eternal arctic whiteness.

Before the year 900 the Norsemen went there and traded. They laid the foundations of the present city, which has grown slowly but almost without halt, preserved in peace by its isolated position.

The city has achieved its present-day importance as an outlet for the products of the far northern and western parts of the Russian empire.

COBB AT HOME NOW LEADING AMERICAN

Georgia Peach Displaces Fournier as Leading American League Batter—Gharrity Still Tops Association.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, May 22.—Ty Cobb has displaced Fournier as leader of the batters of the American League. Average published here today, including records made in last Wednesday's games, show that the Detroit slugger's percentage of .450 is the best in the league with his Chicago rival, Fournier, at .392. In addition to leading the batters, Cobb has jumped in front of Maisei of New York, a base-stealer, having 13 to the latter's 14, and has scored 33 runs—more than anybody in the league. Following Cobb and Fournier are: Ray, Chicago, .389; Jackson, Cleveland, .362; Crawford, Detroit, .348; Lewis, Boston, .326; Lajoie, Philadelphia, .324; Lapp, Philadelphia, .320; Barnum, Detroit, .317; Turner, Cleveland, .315. In club batting, Chicago has climbed to the unaccustomed position of second place, with 256, while Detroit leads with 259.

Ranked according to games won and lost, the leading American League pitchers are: Fisher, New York, 4 and 0; Benz, Chicago, 3 and 0; Fother, Chicago, 2 and 1; Daus, Detroit, 6 and 1; Morton, Cleveland, 5 and 2.

Hennie Kauff, Brooklyn, has ousted his manager, Lee Magee, from the batting leadership of the Federal League. Kauff's average is .417. The first four places are filled with Brooklyn players and in the next five, are five Chicagoans. Next to Kauff are: Cesterzi, Brooklyn, .380; Caster, Brooklyn, .370; Magee, Brooklyn, .375; McDonald, Buffalo, .371; and Chicago, .348; Campbell, Newark, .346; Plack, Chicago, .344; Fischer, Chicago, .343; Easterly, Kansas City, and McDonald, Chicago, .333 each. Magee still leads in team batting, with .370. Leading pitchers of the Federal League, according to games won and lost, are: Prendergast, Chicago, 3 and 0; St. Louis, 1 and 0; Plank, St. Louis, 1 and 0; and Brooklyn, 6 and 2; Allen, Pittsburgh, 6 and 2.

Fred Luderus, Philadelphia, tops the batters in the National, with .396, but Kueisel, Chicago, helped by five hits in a game at Brooklyn, has attained second place with .385. Then come: Connolly, Boston, .386; T. Clarke, Cincinnati, .370; Good, Chicago, .364; Groh, Cincinnati, .354; Lobart, New York, .333; Von Kolnitz, Philadelphia, .333; Merkle, New York, .333; Saier, Chicago, .324. The Braves are leading in club batting with 288 and Chicago is next with 285. Bregannan's eleven stolen bases and two extra bases, credited with by Robertson, New York, and with nine, Saier, Chicago, with 27, is the leading run getter.

There are five undefeated pitchers in the National League. Pierce, Chicago, with four victories; Ames, Boston, and Combs, Brooklyn, with three each; and Standridge, Chicago, and Meadows, St. Louis, with two each. Alexander, Philadelphia, is credited with 11 wins and one defeat; Marnaux, Pittsburgh, with 4 and 1; and Mayer, Philadelphia, with 6 and 2.

American Association batters are following the lead set by Gharrity, Minneapolis, whose average is .431. Then comes Paddock, St. Paul, .477; Drott, Kansas City, .333; Crossing, Louisville, .378; McMillan, Indianapolis, .374; Butcher, Indianapolis, .373; Beall, Milwaukee, .368; Gardner, Cleveland, .363; Compton, Kansas City, .352; Regan, Kansas City, .350. BABY SPACE EATER PROVES FREAK CAR

Louis Chevrolet has Hurdled Mile an Hour Creation. That is About the Size of Pete's Foot.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Indianapolis, May 22.—Louis Chevrolet, America's greatest racing sensation, has arrived on the scene of the next Indianapolis 500-mile race with the queerest car the world has ever seen, a Cornelian. Hardly larger than a baby carriage, it weighs only 1,000 pounds, and carries a motor of only 163 cubic inches piston displacement, smaller than the smallest Ford. The car has practically no unsprung weight, even the differential being mounted on the chassis, and the drive shaft through a series of universal joints. The machine is also minus a frame, the weight simply being carried by the body, which is a single sheet-steel shell. Its speed is estimated at 100 miles an hour.

What Chevrolet will do with this car in competition is the question of the racing world today. Being able to go through the 500-mile grind without a stop for gasoline, oil, or tires, it should rank with the largest cars in the field as favorite.

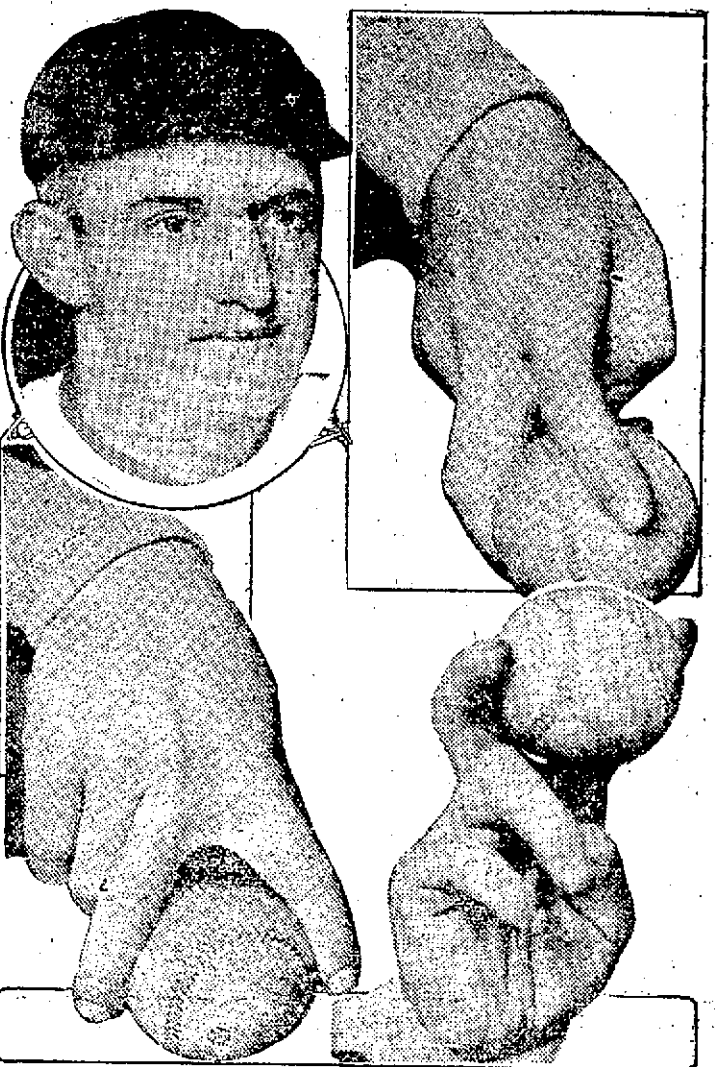

With the news that they had sailed hardly of the wire, J. Porporato and Percy Graham, drivers of English Sunbeams in the next Indianapolis 500-mile race, arrived here, and are now preparing for the contest.

Jean Chassagne, originally scheduled to cross the pond with Porporato, was detained at the last minute by an emergency of warfare, and may not be able to get away after all, though there is still some hope of his coming.

If he does land, he will hardly be in time for the elimination trials on the 20th, 21st and 22nd. Graham will handle the car in these.

Graham, incidentally, though little known on this side, is one of the classiest speed products Europe has ever turned out. He is what is known as a gentleman driver, having confined his efforts chiefly to private speed trials at Brooklands.

STANDRIDGE'S "FORK BALL" IS BECOMING AS FAMOUS AS MATHEWSON'S "FADEAWAY"

BOXING IN THE NAVY IS THE REAL GOODS

New York Has a Demonstration of How Tars Handle the Gloves in Fleet Review.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, May 21.—Lawmakers planning to enact statutes permitting boxing would do well to pay a visit to the Atlantic fleet and learn how the great little game of fistfights is conducted in the navy. Boxing promoters who want to stage real fights also would do well to make similar trips. And Old General Public, if he wants to see a regular scrap, should look up the date of the next championship fight in the navy and engage himself a ringside seat. He'll see a fight that is a fight.

New York got a demonstration of boxing as it should be when the Atlantic fleet visited the Big Town recently. Two championship feather and light heavyweight—were decided in one afternoon. Sam Taylor, of the Michigan, lambasted M. Davis, of the New Hampshire, for the light heavyweight title. The featherweight bit went to Dennis Whalen of the Michigan, who whipped Joe Fisher of the South Carolina.

There are many peculiar features about boxing bouts in the navy. The first place, they are limited to six rounds. The rounds are of but two minutes duration instead of three as in most professional bouts in America. There are no decisions, but they are not given by the referee. Two judges—officers selected from other ships—sit at the ringside and decide upon the winner.

Championships are big things in the navy. They are jealously guarded and they are well regulated. A champion has to defend his title on thirty days' notice. No "rabbits" can get by as champions in the navy. They've either got to fight or give up the title.

If more than one challenger appears on the horizon at the same time, elimination bouts are held to determine who shall meet the champion. A regular belt goes with the championship in each class. In addition to this a $50 purse is hung up at every fight.

When a champion or challenger goes into battle, he is always heavily backed. There are no rules against betting in the navy. A ship's crew will go behind one of its own members to the limit, whether he has a chance of winning or not. They bet through loyalty—not judgment. When the two Wyoming boxers both won in New York recently, the Wyoming sailors had enough money to light Broadway from one end to the other for a couple of nights.

That brilliant leader, Lee Magee, of the Brooklyn, has lost his marvelous Indian twirler, Jim Bluejacket, who has departed for his home tepee at Adair, Okla., after writing Magee a letter saying he will return when his leg is strong enough to pitch.

It is said Bluejacket's leg never bothered him when he was pitching for Bloomington, but Magee made him change his style of delivery and he sprained a ligament in his calf.

MORRIS MILLER

Old Cy Morgan has run his race. Once again the once famous spitballer is a free agent, having been turned loose unconditionally by Manager Dobbis of the New Orleans Pelicans. Morgan showed well in spring games against the Indians, but it proved only a flash. Pitcher George Beck, last year with the Spiders, has also been released by Dobbis. Beck goes to the Texas league.

Harry Wills, the colored heavy-weight giant from New Orleans, has attracted the attention of many prominent sporting men with his marvelous boxing and ring work the past few weeks at Hawkins' training camp, Nat Goodwin, and Tom O'Rourke, being two experts of note who gave Wills the credit of being the equal of Jack Johnson when the ex-champion was at his best. Wills stands 6 feet 2 1/2 inches, weighs 212 pounds in fighting trim and is said to be the most powerful man in the ring today. In his bout with Jim Johnson and Sam Langford, this latest colored phenomenon lifted and tossed them about as if they were feathers.

While it is, of course, true that Eddie Collins since joining the White Sox has not been hitting up to his form, a very wise baseball man, who has been seeing all the games the team has played, attributes its success to Collins' presence on the team. "He has made them an intelligent ball team," said this man. "He never overlooks a thing, and I can count eight games on my fingers that he has won by reason of using his head, which the public knows nothing about. The fellow who makes a home run with the bases full is always given all the credit he deserves, but Collins has been making strategic homers which have been overlooked, but which have delivered the goods. His fielding has contributed much to the team, and he is sure to establish the fact this year that he is by far the greatest ball player in the game today."

Bill Donovan, better known as "Wild Bill," gained his nickname when he was in the minors, says John R. Robinson of the Boston Traveller. To the mind of the small boy the name of "Wild Bill" is associated with shooting scrapes and general good times on the frontier. Donovan in his youth pitched in the Eastern league, and his propensity for shooting people in the grandstand with wild curves gained him the name which he now proudly bears. It only shows that a man cannot outlive a mispent past, no matter how good his control may be at present.

Manager John Gansel of the Rochester Hustlers is so enthusiastic over Walter Holke at first base that he told New York scribes that Holke is 35 per cent better than either Bush Schmidt or Walter Pipp. Just how he figures the exact percentage is not stated.

Joe Wagner of the Reds, looks better all the time. He is one of the few recruits of 1915 who have taken nicely to the big league pace from the start, and he seems to be fully capable of steady improvement, even though pretty well burned up in most departments now. He has played good ball at shortstop for his recruit out of his position, and his second base performance is thoroughly classy. He can work as either the starter or the pivot in a double play with Herzog, and work right rapidly—something that lots of the veterans can't do properly, let alone the juniors.

To the mind of the small boy the name of "Wild Bill" is associated with shooting scrapes and general good times on the frontier. Donovan in his youth pitched in the Eastern league, and his propensity for shooting people in the grandstand with wild curves gained him the name which he now proudly bears. It only shows that a man cannot outlive a mispent past, no matter how good his control may be at present.

Manager John Gansel of the Rochester Hustlers is so enthusiastic over Walter Holke at first base that he told New York scribes that Holke is 35 per cent better than either Bush Schmidt or Walter Pipp. Just how he figures the exact percentage is not stated.

Joe Wagner of the Reds, looks better all the time. He is one of the few recruits of 1915 who have taken nicely to the big league pace from the start, and he seems to be fully capable of steady improvement, even though pretty well burned up in most departments now. He has played good ball at shortstop for his recruit out of his position, and his second base performance is thoroughly classy. He can work as either the starter or the pivot in a double play with Herzog, and work right rapidly—something that lots of the veterans can't do properly, let alone the juniors.

PAIGE

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

If Your Car Is A Paige, You Can Depend Upon It

There's a heap of satisfaction in owning a car that's always ready—always reliable—always dependable.

When you start off on a week-end "jaunt" you want to know that you are coming back in that car—not shamefacedly in a railroad train or a hired "team."

You don't want to make apologies for your car—you don't want to pass up the really worth while long trips because they are "out of the garage zone."

You want to feel that you can go anywhere—confidently and lightly.

If you are to discover one-half of the real joy of motoring, you must drive a car that practically "takes care of itself"—a car that permits you to relax and drink in the woody breath of the forest or the thrilling ozone of the sea.

That's why you need a good car—a reliable car. That's why you need a Paige.

Reliability In The Six-"46"

Consider the following essentials of Paige Value—a combination of high grade features found on no other Light Six regardless of price.

The first essential of reliability in a motor car, of course, centers in the power plant. With the Six "46" you will find the celebrated Paige-Continental 3 1/2 x 5 1/2 motor. It is freely conceded that Continental means undisputed leadership in Sixes, and this motor is the result of close co-operation between both Paige and Continental engineers. For smoothness, flexibility and power, here is the highest development found in the light Six field.

No matter what the weather conditions may be, you need never worry about the starting of your motor when you have the Gray & Davis starting and lighting system and the Rayfield carburetor. Here is a combination of the most expensive starting and lighting system that a manufacturer can place on his car and carburetion that is always positive—always efficient.

Then, there is a velvety acting multiple disc clutch with cork inserts, newest type zigzag radiator, resilient cantilever springs, the world famous Bosch magnet, floating type rear axle and powerful brakes with positive action on the steepest hills. No better—no more dependable features can be found on any car at any price.

The Six "46" is a real seven-passenger car of 124-inch wheelbase—not merely a five-passenger car with two extra seats. The lines of the body are the last word in European stream line, the upholstery is genuine leather throughout, and no feature which will contribute to luxurious comfort is missing in the equipment and appointments.

But see this wonderful motor car for yourself. Ride in it—drive it. Then you will see for yourself the combination of high grade features found in no other light Six, whatever the price.

Make it a point to see the Paige dealer today.

Eighteen Thousand Square Feet of Floor Space Contained in Hardware Store of Frank Douglas Phenomenal growth shown in this enterprising business which was started seven years ago by Mr. Douglas who is a practical hardware man.

Very few people realize the extent of the floor area contained in the hardware store of Frank Douglas. The main floor occupies two whole stories at 15 and 17 South River street. The second and third floors take in the entire top of the Norcross block above six store rooms. Then there is the basement and the tin shop in the rear.

It is the largest hardware store in this part of the state with a floor space of 18,000 feet.

"Practical hardware" has been Mr. Douglas' slogan for seven years. He has built up his present magnificent business by selling practical hardware. By selling nothing he could not stand back of and say "I guarantee it." He has built his business upon a foundation of honest goods, honest dealings and honest advertising. With these three planks in his platform it is nothing strange that his store has grown to its present splendid proportions.

Thirty-five years ago Mr. Douglas entered the employ of Lawrence, Atwood and Lowell who at that time were located on West Milwaukee street and had the largest hardware store in Southern Wisconsin.

From that time to this Mr. Douglas has been continuously connected with the hardware business.

As a result his name has always been associated with hardware, and associated in such a way as to reflect only to his credit. Today he has patrons who come for miles to trade with him because they know Frank Douglas knows the hardware business and also that they will receive a square deal every time.

Seven years ago he entered business for himself at his present location on South River street and since he has had the pleasure of witnessing a small stock grow into a large stock to meet the ever increasing trade.

Everything that goes to make up the stock of a well equipped hardware store is to be found there. Furnaces, stoves of all kinds, refrigerators, paints, fencing and farm tools, garden tools, garden hose, builders' tools, household utensils, sporting goods, cutlery, bicycles, farm equipments, lawn mowers etc. An entire newspaper page would be required to enumerate every article.

Mr. Douglas has been fortunate in securing the exclusive agency of several well known factories. Realizing that a good name is rather to be chosen than great profits he chooses such companies as have manufactured articles of merit. Companies who have staked their own reputation and who have built up a name for putting into each article the best of material and workmanship. In this way his patrons have the guarantee of both the manufacturer and himself.

Mr. Douglas chose the "Garland" stoves and ranges and since he first placed this line in his store he has made hundreds of housewives happy and satisfied. Garland Stoves embody so many good points that it has been an easy matter to place them. There is a stove or range for coal, wood or gas, as well as a combination gas and coal or wood stove. This last has been very popular because of the many conveniences of being able to use gas when wanted and other fuel in cold weather.

Gilt Edge Furnaces are an exclusive agency also. They are the most powerful, economical and durable furnaces made. The great saving in coal through the use of Gilt Edge furnaces has been a big factor in determining the selection of this furnace by a tremendous number of home builders in this section.

Quick Meal Oil and Gasoline Stoves are one of the most popular lines of this kind of stoves on the market. They are very convenient where gas is not possible and are used quite extensively because they are cheaper than gas.

Rogers Machine Made Paint is a ready mixed paint famous for its even flow and lasting durability. A complete stock is carried by Mr. Douglas together with this make of varnishes and finishes.

No other lawn mower that Mr. Douglas ever sold has given so much satisfaction as the Reading National. This mower is equipped with high wheels, ball bearings and other features that make it easy to run. He features the 16-inch cut on which he has placed a remarkably low price.

Apex Fencing is the product of Janesville, being made by the Janesville Barb Wire Company. It has so many strong features that Mr. Douglas would not consider the sale of any other.

Other exclusive agency lines consist of River Keen tools, Reading Builders Hardware, Waterville Cutlery and others that are well known.

As stated before it has always been the policy of this store to make good every article sold. With such high grade lines as listed above the making good has been done before the article was sold. Therefore it is very seldom that this store is called upon to make an adjustment. Mr. Douglas makes sure the article is right before he lets it go out of the store.

That same policy has applied in his advertising. He has given the public exactly what he has promised in his advertisements.

It does not take long for such a policy to beget confidence. And confidence is a mighty valuable thing for a dealer to have from his patrons.
